EVANS DENTAL PARLORS,

IN THE CARIBBEAN SEA.

Admiral Meade's Highly Interesting

Admiral Meade's Highly Interesting
Lecture at Metzerott Hall.

A large audience assembled at Metzerott
Music Hail last evening to hear Admiral Meade deliver his lecture on the "Caribbean Bea." Admiral Meade has cruised in those waters for many years, and has seen the different places of interest from both the stanctnoint of a midshirman and the commanding officer of a squadron.

During this long service Admiral Meade has collected many fine photographs of historical places and old Spanish towns and fortresses. Beninning with those Central American Renabiles whose shores are washed by the Caribbean, the Admiral took each one in order down along the coast, giving the principal facts concerning their settlement, and the many wars that have sprang up, to and since the time of their struggle for liberty.

When he came to Venezuela and touched on the boundary question, he took a small book from his pocket, and holding it up said:

"This, indies and gentlemen, is one of the cidest maps of Venezuela extant, and it shows the boundary line to be many hundreds of miles distant from where Great Britain now claims it to be."

Admiral Meade went on to give a vivid word picture of the delightful climate and easy life that is led by those who dwell on the Islands of the Caribbean Sea, and took occasion to polyt out those over which waved the English flag.

Ex-Minister Phelps, Ex-Senator Edmunds and Judge Carter Regarded as the Probable Personnel - With Five Members Mr. Evarts and Frederick Condert Might Be Added.

There is a strong probability that the There is a strong probability that the President will today announce the commission to investigate the territorial dispute between Great Britain and Venezuela, the bill for its creation becoming a law with the affixing of his signature.

The personnel of the commission has already been widely discussed and thenames of many prominent men suggested in that connection. The law prohibits the selection of any one already holding an official position.

ficial position.

This provision bars from consideration Senators, Representatives, and Justices of the Supreme Court, and restricts the choice the Supreme Court, and restricts the choice to those in private life. This feature of the question has been thoroughly discussed by prominent men in both branches of Congress.

The almost unanimous expression of sentiment is to the effect that the entire commission should consist of distinguished privity, whose legal attainments have given them a world-wide reputation and whom the people would recognize as being absolutely above partisan bias.

HARRISON IS DEBARRED. In these opinions the name of ex-President Harrison has not been mentioned, it being generally recognized that he is a politician, a prospective candidate for office, and a pronounced partisan. Ex-Attorney General Garland has not been suggested for similar Garland has not been suggested for similar reasons.

The names first upon the tongues of every leader in both parties are ex-Minister Phelis. ex-Senator Edmunds, and Judge Carter, the majority, of course, being Democrats. It is field that these three gentlemen would constitute an ideal commission. It would constitute an ideal commission. It would committed the respect of jurists and partiamentarians in England, and their conclusions would have weight on both sides of the water.

Should a commission of five members be selected its strength could be maintained by adding the names of Frederick R. Condert and ex-Senator William M. Evarts.

R. Condert and ex-senator william B. Evarts.

It is desired that the personnel should in every way be equal to the Geneva commission, which arbitrated the Alabama claims. Mr. Eyarts was a member of that commission. It is the general belief that geographical lines should not be taken into consideration, but men selected for their high character. Integrity, non-artisanship, and the respect in which they are held both here and abroad.

WILL NOT LEAVE WASHINGTON. The general belief of Senators and members is that the work of the commission will be performed in this city. A Journey to Venezucia is held to be useless, as entrance to the disputed territory would doubtless be refused by England.

The opinion is also freely expressed that Great Britain will certainly recede from her position.

that Great Britain will certainly recede from her position.

The fact is pointed out that Lord Salisbury has left a hoophole for diplomatic retreat as indicated in one of his communications, when he says that because British subjects have settled beyond the lime of territorial demarcation they must be afforded protection. This is held to be an admission that territory belonging to Venezueta has been unwarrantary occupied.

In addition to the farmer element in the meeting, there were some experts present, as Mr. William Dodge, late of the Agricultural Department, and Prof. Gunton of New York.

The object of the session was to talk over the situation with reference to the status of the agricultural products of this country in the Liverpool market, where the price of the surplus is generally fixed, and to seek from Congress some remedial legislation.

and to seek from Congress some remedial legislation.

Mr. Lubin expressed the view that the time was approaching when a great body of voters will abandon any party affiliation which is not in sympathy with a movement for the protection of the farming industries. He gontends that the tariff laws are defective so far as agriculture is concerned, his contention being that the remedy should be an export bounty on the staples of production.

The general opinion of the meeting was that legislation by Congress was necessary to keep the farming element on a par with the manufacturers.

Charles Smith Committed Perjury and Attempted Suicide.

INMATE OF SOLDIERS' HOME

Vas a Witness in the Case Against Michael Burke for Keeping "Speakeasy," But Testified in Favor of the Accused and Afterwards Became Conscience-stricken.

Charles Smith, an inmate of the Soldiers' Home, while in a fit of remorse, attempted to commit suicide last Thursday morning, at the Home. He cut his throat and made a gash in his right wrist with a safty razor. The keen blade came within a quarter of an inch of his jugular vein. Had it penetrated further, Smith would have surely died.

A comrade discovered him and had him removed to the hospital, where his wounds were dressed.
Smith was a witness in the trial of Michael Burke, who was indicted on a charge of keeping an uniformed saloon, or "speak-casy." Burke was cleared as the evidence in the case was not sufficient to convict, all of the witnesses testifying that they never drank anything at Burke's establishment.

SMITH TELLS HIS REASONS. It was decided, however, to retry the case and summon the same winesses who bad testified previously. Attachments were issued and served by policemen yesterday morning.
